MEMORANDUM

To: Members of the Federal Safety Council

From: Paul E. Gurske, Chairman
Federal Safety Council Paul E. Gurske

Subject: President's Conference on Occupational Safety

President Eisenhower has called a national conference on occupational safety for March 25-27, 1958, to be held in Washington, D. C. Secretary of Labor Mitchell is in charge of the Conference which, by adding transportation and mining for the first time, will embrace all segments of the American economy.

The tentative program will feature a number of simultaneous workshops covering late developments on such topics as radiation hazards, human motivation toward safety, the relationship between medicine and safety, as well as State safety consultation services and other timely subjects.

In making preparations for a Conference of this size, it is our practice to give careful attention to building up lists of individuals who will benefit by attending the Conference and who should, therefore, receive an official invitation from the President. We are calling on you for assistance in preparing a list for the 1958 meeting. If you could send us the names of those individuals in your agency who should receive invitations, it would be most helpful. There is no numerical limitation on the number you may recommend.

To send out a Presidential invitation we need the individual's full name, title, organization, street address, and city.

In order to process lists from all sources, we would appreciate it very much if we could receive yours not later than October 15, preferably earlier if possible. Thank you very much for your assistance.
